

To whom it may concern:

I just wanted to express my concerns about how these power organizations are trying to limit my choice with choosing satellite over listening to our local radio and television stations. As part of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, consumers would have more choices to choose which companies can provide all of our telecommunications products and services. XM Satellite Radio has been a great addition to my life as I have the choice to listen to uninterrupted music as well as live concerts, sports, talk shows and news that I would not receive listening to my local radio station. XM has been one of the best choices that I ever could made and now many of my friends who listen to it want to purchase it. I believe that this was a great product launch by XM and if this is taken away, I would really become an angry consumer and would voice my concerns at the polls. To me, XM is better than listening to my local radio stations and maybe, the local radio and television stations need to up the ante and provide better programming. Maybe, they will stop trying to limit consumer choices by lobbying and contributing to the politicians to get their way.
